1 The collection title is linked to the Collection Report page for the selected collection.

2 For all reports, constructing useful and accurate sub-headings probably involves making them dynamic, based on the selections made in the customization panel.

1 Debatable whether this is necessary, but making this a collapsible panel might make for a more pleasant user experience, as it would give the user the option to generate a report and then focus on the results more easily.

2 Other potential options:

Previous 12 months

2016 (calendar year)

2016 (fiscal year)

2015 (calendar year)

2015 (fiscal year)

3 If we think of other "status" attributes of collections that would be useful to show, they could be added as an additional, similar tables.

For example, would a "Monthly collection type status" report, which would show the breakdown of how many "Admin set", "User", "Exhibit" and other collection types there were for each month, be useful?

1 Idea is to show small number initially (~5) but provide access to the full list on demand.

One potential approach: on "Expand" show a larger number (e.g., 10 or 20) and add paging controls at the bottom of the list to provide access to additional items.

2 Strictly speaking, works aren't downloaded, only files are. Still, it is useful to know how many file downloads of a work there have been, we could include the downloads columns.

3 We'll have to develop some guidelines around these metrics, such as whether a view of a work by the creator (or reviewer, etc.) counts as a view, etc.
